

“Who Was Who” Index

For six years, we have been writing and posting profiles of people who have been noteworthy in Ridgefield’s 300-year history. They include actors, artists, writers, singers, composers, designers, musicians, executives, local political, religious and business leaders, doctors, lawyers, war heroes, families, interesting characters, and even a few criminals, a couple of hermits and a hobo. (All of them have died.)

Additional biographies will be posted as we continue to research and explore the many fascinating people who’ve lived in Ridgefield.

All of these profiles are available on Facebook's Old Ridgefield group — go to the Old Ridgefield home page and use the search (magnifying glass) function to look for a person or topic.

They can also be found on the website, RidgefieldHistory.com. There you can view and download copies, with their accompanying images, in .PDF, .DOCX, .HTML, and in other file formats. (While the material is copyrighted, it is free to use for historical, genealogical, or local educational purposes.)
